Music in April live auction and dinner gala – Saturday, April 5

Our 23rd annual Music in April fundraising events are almost here! Please join us as we host both our in-person Music in April dinner gala and live auction/raffle, as well as our online auction that runs April 1-30.

The not-to-be-missed gala will be held Saturday, April 5, from 5-9 pm at St. John's Community Center in Brunswick, and tickets are on sale now ($50 each or two for $90). The evening will feature delicious food, live music, amazing raffle items, a mini silent auction and our always-popular live auction with our favorite auctioneer, John Bottero.

Want to have fun bidding on nifty items while supporting a good cause and enjoying good food? Items like a year's worth of gas from Rusty Lantern Markets, an exclusive brewery tour for six at Maine Beer Company, or how about a French dinner prepared just for you?

Executive Chef Chris Toole will lead our culinary team for appetizers, dinner entrees and dessert, with participation from local restaurants and our own People Plus kitchen

Our band will be longtime Music in April musicians, Touching Base. This jazz ensemble takes pride in creating a full sound while keeping the volume low enough so people can enjoy both the music and their conversations. The musicians, all from Bath and Arrowsic, are Lawrence Kovacs (organ), Bob Knowles (guitar), and Dave Rawson (drums). Our vocal ensemble will be The Bowdoin College Meddiebempsters. Founded in 1937, the Meddies are the nation's third oldest men's collegiate a cappella group and a celebrated hallmark of Bowdoin College. Performing their effective blend of jazz standards, college classics, and modern songs, they entertain in New England at colleges and other venues, touring new regions each vear.

This year the cash bars will again be manned by members of the American Legion, Corey E. Garver Post 202 - a nonprofit organization in Topsham that provides resources to programs and services that enhance the lives of our veterans and their families, as well as children's programs and our Maine communities as a

As always, our servers will be teenage volunteers from Brunswick High School and the Brunswick Area Teen Center, keeping with our mission of building community for all ages. Students will have the opportunity to gain valuable experience with the public while earning community service hours needed to graduate.

The online auction will run April 1-30, with new items added every week during the month. Last year's event drew more than 400 bidders and almost 400 donated items for the People Plus Center. Our goal this year is to raise $90,000, and we are currently collecting fabulous items to put up for auction.

Do you have items to donate? You can donate jewelry, handcrafted items, season tickets, professional services – or any items continued on page 10

FYI! State of the Birds: Decades of Change

Thu, Mar. 13, 1:30 pm. Bird populations in Maine are continually changing. During this talk, Nick Lund, Maine Audubon's Advocacy and Outreach Manager, will discuss which bird species are disappearing and which are increasing based on the last few decades. He will then look ahead to ponder what the future of Maine birds might be. A birder and writer, Lund wrote The ABA Field Guide to the Birds of Maine and articles appearing in Slate.com, The Washington Post, National Geographic, and other outlets. Free, open to the public. Registration required.

We made the finals!

Honestly, we only made them by the blink of an eye, and when I tell you that, I'm not kidding at all...

Just to remind you what I'm talking about, it all began in September when I noticed a giant toboggan leaning up against the wall in a friend's apartment. My inquiry about said toboggan led to me learning about a tobogganing team that's been around for almost a decade called "A Flying Flock."

Based out of Portland, this group of six women annually don their flamingo pink and duckling yellow snow gear and precariously perch themselves on a fairly narrow piece of wood, hold on to each other for dear life, and zoom down an icy toboggan chute going 35 miles per hour while competing in the US National Toboggan Championships at the Snow Bowl in Camden – every year!

And I thought to myself when I saw that toboggan: "I like adventure, I like action, I like to endanger my own life ... So of course I'll join the team!"

And it was a hoot! I made great friends! I wore a bright yellow suit! I spent 10 hours outside in 15-below wind chills!

And... I zoomed down that chute in five of our eight races! And I'm happy to report that I was on the runs that scored our two fastest times! Quack!

And according to our team Captain, Maile Buker from Portland. "We crushed it! With three veterans and three newbies, we somehow qualified for both the 3-person & 4-person finals! Our ducklings were quick studies!"

In the 3-person finals we finished 31st out of 35 teams - finishing only 0.375 seconds behind the fastest 3-person team.

That's less than a blink of an eye! We sped things up in the 4-person finals with a sub-9 second run, (8.98 to be exact) going 37 miles an hour! And finishing 28th out of 38 teams – only 0.279 seconds behind the fastest 4-person women's team.

That's less than one flap of a hummingbird's wings!

So if you're going to live in a place where winter can last for months, you hopefully enjoy playing out in the snow! And since we certainly do, when the opportunity presented itself to add a fun new element to our winter activities this year, we jumped 'on board'!

And what an amazing weekend it was in Camden with the rest of the "Flock," hanging out in "Tobogganville" with our husbands acting as "wing-men" as they carried the sled, kept the firepit roaring, and made us food and hot cocoa. (Thanks, Jonathan!)

So if you've never been to

From the Executive Director

this event, you should definitely go next year to see why thousands of people drive from states as far as Florida, Virginia, and Pennsylvania to compete!

Some of the memorable wins this year were for "Frogs on a Log," the "oldest" team with an average age of 84; the best "costume" went to the "Sasquatch Revealed" team for their furry outfits; and the fastest qualifying run went to "Bolt" with a time of

Let me remind you that our fastest run was 8.98 and theirs was 8.84! That is 0.14 – or 14 hundredths of a second difference!

And that folks is faster than a blink of an eye. That is all it took for them to win! Amazing!

And while no trophies were won by our Flock, we loved getting all decked out in pink and vellow to celebrate life and adventure! We had a great time, made new friends, and created amazing memories to last a

And I can tell you that when Maile asked me if I want to be part of the team again next year – I answered "Yes!" faster than a blink of an eye!

The joy of food unites us

March is National Nutrition Month, and the theme this year is "Food Connects Us." How true this is. I think back to all of the Thanksgiving meals at my grandparents, and we are still making the same meal today. My grown daughters talk about a dish I used to make casseroles in ... and it is a great memory for them. My parents were part of a gourmet group that met monthly. It was a great way for my mother to learn to cook challenging recipes and connect with her friends.

Another example of "Food Connects Us" was a part of our lives for many years. Our neighbor lived alone and wasn't a cook. So, each night my girls would run over to her house with her dinner. Our dog would go along. They would chat with her for a few minutes and return home with the dishes from the day before and a treat for our dog. The ritual was so special. How can we connect with food? Here are some suggestions:

Ask a neighbor over for a meal.

From Anita's Plate

Anita Nugent (207) 504-6439

info@nutritionforeveryday.com

- Bring dinner to a friend.
- Come to People Plus for soup on Monday.
- Attend the monthly breakfast and luncheon.
- Make your favorite food you had growing up for family or friends.
- Give your grandchildren sliced fruit for an evening snack

My great grandmother was a wonderful cook. She could spread strudel dough over the entire dining room table! In addition to this, cut up oranges or apples as we watched TV one of my fondest memories was having her at night. For sure ... food connects us!

Tomato Sauce

Ingredients:

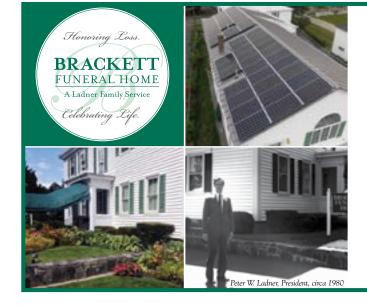

- •2 large cans of tomato puree •2 small cans of tomato paste
- •1 (11.5 oz.) can of tomato juice
- •3 Tbsp. Parmesan cheese
- •1 Tbsp. sugar
- Garlic, onion powder, and oregano to taste

Directions:

Combine ingredients in a pan and simmer.

Note: This is the tomato sauce recipe that my mother used to make. When I came home from school and saw this simmering on the stove, I knew we were going to have a great dinner. An example of food that connects us!

Habitat for Humanity offers free help with home repairs

If you are an older or disabled homeowner who needs home repairs, did you know local Habitat for Humanity volunteers can help make your home more energy-efficient or make modifications to improve your mobility, safety and independence through its Critical Home Repairs program? "Dryer, safer, warmer is our emphasis," says Adam Lacher, executive director of the local Habitat 7 Rivers chapter. "There is no cost for the homeowner, because the labor and materials are donated by Habitat," he adds. (Only major repairs are outside the scope and scale of their budget allowance, but even then Habitat can help out with some costs.)

Part of the work volunteer teams do is basic weatherizing to prevent heat loss and reduce heating expenses, such as weatherstripping, door sweeps, and blocking leaks around the foundation. Other work involves more substantial repairs, and customized plans are developed to address each homeowner's needs. Some of what Habitat can help with includes: fixing doors and windows, repairing/building new stairs, installing ramps, installing handrails, basic weatherizing, addressing moisture issues, changing doorknobs, improvements to flooring, gutter work, installing grab bars, improving lighting, and changing faucets.

Lacher says Habitat has worked closely with community organizations and recently received grants from Rotary and the Town of Brunswick. "It's a big deal to have that support," he notes. A believer in building coalitions, he notes that Harpswell Aging at Home also partners with Habitat.

Lacher says the demand for repairs is high and that through organizing and managing their operations most efficiently, volunteer teams have been able to serve many more homeowners now compared to just five years ago. Many clients are older women who live alone, he notes. If you live in Brunswick, Harpswell or in Lincoln or Sagadahoc counties, you are eligible if your income is up to 80% of the area median income for your county. (In Brunswick, that is $57,200 for a household of one.) To fill out the easy application and find out about eligibility, call 504-9332.

Member Moment Meet Linda Christie

Linda Christie of Bowdoinham - lover of music, especially blues, folk, and African drumming – has always known that helping others is what she wanted to do. Now retired and an active member at People Plus who takes chair yoga and Qigong classes, she also volunteers four hours a week at the Teen Center. "She has a natural rapport with the kids," says Taylor Carter, who runs the teen program. "She has brought in some great ideas, and it makes such an impact to have someone like her there each week to listen to and engage with the kids.'

Tell us a bit about your background.

I grew up in Calais until I was 10 and also provided tobacco and substance abuse prevention classes at Bath Middle School.

then we moved to Connecticut. But we came back to Calais when I was 17. I went to college at Bangor Community College and got an associate's degree in human services. From there, I first worked in a home for pregnant teenagers, being a labor coach and helping them with life skills and how to take care of their babies. I wanted to be a nurse or nurse practitioner, but I got fibromyalgia, which leaves me in pain and exhausted. I didn't think I could handle the physical work of nursing.

hat did you do instead?

I took time off to take care of my son when he was born, then I worked as a medical assistant and for the WIC program that helps women and children, as well as for the March of Dimes. I then went to UMaine-Farmington and received a B.S. in Community Health Education. Eventually I landed at Access Health, which was a community health education program out of Midcoast Parkview Hospital that focused on prevention. I was the director for many years. I had many responsibilities, but my favorite part of my job was overseeing the youth advocacy program. We trained students how to talk to other kids about avoiding tobacco use and substance misuse. We went to health fairs, did TV commercials. I

I was the ACCESS Health director for 12 years and then became a prevention coordinator for 8 years. During that time, I also was heavily involved with taking care of my mother, who had Alzheimer's

Pell me what you like about volun-1 teering at the Teen Center.

I like working with teens. My interest was fostered by raising a teenage son as a single parent. Those were difficult years, but I learned a lot. I like talking to kids at the Teen Center. I love their energy and their fresh approach to looking at the world.

You enjoy African drumming, right?
Yes. Recently, I invited a friend who teaches African drumming to the Teen Center, and the kids enjoyed learning the basics of drumming. I've been drumming for many years, and I've met people all over the state. It's one of the best ways I have found to release stress. Now my hands are arthritic, so I don't play as much.

Yell me about your support dog, ■ Maggie, who comes to class with and I adopted her. Maggie is very mellow. Many years ago I asked one of the instructors if I could bring her into the class and after that she came to all my classes. She is the greeter. ny parting words of wisdom? A My biggest life lesson is to take care of me. Having fibromyalgia and providing Alzheimer's care for my mom taught me that.

Note: If you would like to volunteer, know that Habitat needs volunteers. Call 504-9332. "The great thing about volunteering is that you can physically see that you are helping someone," says Lacher. Volunteers also staff the ReStore shop run by Habitat in Bath.

Want to learn to play bridge? Or re-learn?

If you've never played bridge or haven't played in a long time, come to People Plus and get introduced to the game in a friendly atmosphere. Cathy Cooper, who leads the play on Tuesday and Thursday mornings, says, "Many people who come might think a high level of knowledge is needed, but that's not the case here. Many who come haven't played since college or just want to learn." The object is to have fun and absorb skills at your level, she notes, adding that more experienced players are happy to help teach the beginners.

Lori Waresmith of Harpswell, who had not played since her college days 40 years ago, says, "I was intimidated at first until I knew everybody was nice." After moving here four years ago without knowing people, she now comes every week and likes the relaxed atmosphere. "It's nice to have this," she says.

Beginner bridge is offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 9 am (9:30 during tax season). It's free, so just come and check

The fastest toboggan chute in the East

All this chatter around our Stacy's decision to enter with her "flock" into the 34th annual U.S. National Toboggan Championships in Camden last month got my curiosity – and my memory – going, so Jane and I piled into our car and headed off to "spectate!" We always want to support the efforts of our People Plus boss, you know; besides, being "chute side" once more reminded me of another toboggan race, way back in the last century.

Maybe you hibernate though your winters and have no idea what the U.S. National Toboggan Championships might be? Shame on you, and let me explain.

The Town of Camden, that gem of the coast for so many summer visitors to Maine, is the proud owner of its own ski area and winter adventure center. This Snow Bowl, as it's called, is one of the few places I know where you can ski within sight of the Atlantic Ocean. Off on the left side of the ski trails, you'll find the all but unique toboggan chute. Built and rebuilt over the years, this 450-foot, maybe 30-degree angled, icefilled wooden chute will spit a toboggan off a mountainside and onto an ice-covered lake, faster, they say, then a "turd down a toilet!" Eight seconds? Nine, ten seconds? Ice? Stacy, what were you thinking?

Turns out, I know just what she was thinking. My kids and I did that chute, back when they were teenagers, and I considered myself "less breakable!" Better than that, in 1998, I was the "spiritual leader" of a team that won a trophy in that competition! To know the story, let me refer you to Volume II of Writing For Fun, a publication of the 55 Plus Center in the year 2000. Effic Blackstone was the author of a piece she called, "The Toboggan Ride." She states: "Two years ago, our activity director (Frank Connors) at The Highlands suggested we might be interested in participating in a unique national sporting event, the U.S. National Toboggan Championships!" T's were crossed, I's were dotted, and I hauled a van full of seniors, average age of 78, for a day on the chute. Effie became one of my three volunteer riders, the venerable 'K' Schmidt another, and our goal was a newly minted "Oldest Team" trophy. That third rider remains in a sort of witness protection program.

Effie continues: "There were three volunteers, I being one of them ... we had to sign a document absolving Camden from any liability in case of a mishap ... we were seated on (Frank's) old toboggan with instructions by an official to keep our legs properly anchored to avoid a spill ... our volunteer seated in the rear said she had knee replacements so she couldn't bend her knees in that awkward position. I, being in the center, was delegated to hold her legs up!"

'We made two flashing runs down that 450-foot, icecoated chute, (best time) 9.8 seconds,' Effie wrote. "We were well behind the record time of 8.3 seconds. On the second run, we couldn't stop and continued racing down the center of the lake. I shut my eyes tightly, held onto those two legs with – to drop them all my might

– to drop them meant flipping over at a tremendous speed

– and I prayed, oh my dear God, when is this all going to end! At which time we hit a rut in the ice and flipped over!
Fortunately, we were unscathed, and we proudly returned to The Highlands with that "Oldest Team Trophy!"

"Tobogganville" has changed dramatically in the last quarter century. Jane and I sat in a mile-long traffic jam in the middle of nowhere for nearly an hour, only to be rejected within sight of the venue and told by a jovial policeman, "Go get on the shuttle." Eager to see Stacy's nine seconds of glory, we did that, parking in downtown Camden, climbing on a slightly warm school bus that sped up Washington Street and took a back road into the Snow Bowl. "How did we miss this," Jane wanted to know, as we de-bussed, and walked across the ice-shrouded lake, enjoying a guy doing a play-by-play on a loudspeaker as toboggans, one after the other, came rumbling off that chute.

Hundreds of tobogganers from all over Maine, New England, and the rest of the world, packed around the chute. Organized chaos came to mind. Food trucks, warming huts, tents, and open campfires lined a sort of midway, as down parka-ed, boot-kicking, mittened-and-masked revelers packed the area.

Jane and I almost lost each other. "Hey," she yelled, "do you remember the time we went to the winter carnival in Quebec?" That question is the measure she and I use to describe freezing cold, wind-howling conditions like at the Bowl.

I started to wonder how I could miss four lovely lady competitors in bright yellow suits. I looked at Jane and decided we needed to hurry. Turns out, we did not see Stacy race, we never even found Stacy! Thirty minutes later we're back on a bus, blowing life back into our fingers, and headed back to Camden. It was a great day, but we were focused on an early supper at Moody's Diner.

If You Go: Follow Route 1 through Bath, Damariscotta and Waldoboro. At Warren, turn left on State Route 90 and drive through West Rockport. Rejoin Route 1 at Rockport, where you turn left again. As you enter Camden, see signs for the Camden Snow Bowl; it will be another left turn. You'll see the lake first, the Snow Bowl is one last left turn. You're almost 60 miles from Brunswick when you park your car for free.

The toboggan championships are always the second weekend of February, don't miss it next year. I'm wondering if Stacy will be there?

FRANK'S FACT

A team from Massachusetts called Frogs on a Log, average age reported to be 84, took home what they called the Oldest Team Trophy in the U.S. National Toboggan Championships this year. Good for them, but in my mind, my ladies from The Highlands, circa 1998, and our own Stacy Frizzle-Edgerton's Flying Flock, are still the undisputed champions.

FOR 'MOVIE MONDAY' ENINGSTAR CINEMA!

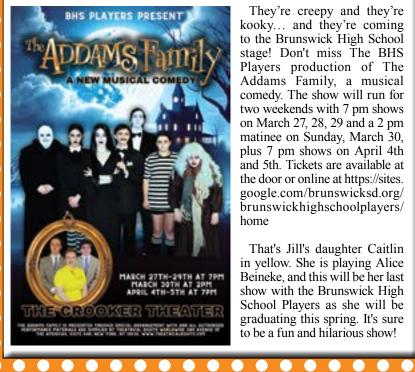

March 17 is 'Movie Monday!'

We have teamed up with Eveningstar Cinema, in downtown Brunswick, to offer a 1:30 pm matinee show on the third Monday of every month! This month's movie is Waking Ned Devine, a charming Irish comedy perfect for Saint Patrick's Day. The movie is open to the public at the regular cinema rate, however People Plus members who show their membership card save $2 off the senior ticket price ($10 ticket with free popcorn!) If you'd like to become a People Plus member to get the discount, stop by the Center on Union St and sign up. It's only $45 per year. Mark your calendars so you never miss this fun outing with pals to see a movie! Registration for "Movie Monday" is not necessary.

Don't miss the BHS play!

They're creepy and they're kooky... and they're coming to the Brunswick High School stage! Don't miss The BHS Players production of The Addams Family, a musical comedy. The show will run for two weekends with 7 pm shows on March 27, 28, 29 and a 2 pm matinee on Sunday, March 30, plus 7 pm shows on April 4th and 5th. Tickets are available at the door or online at https://sites. google.com/brunswicksd.org/ brunswickhighschoolplayers/ home

That's Jill's daughter Caitlin in yellow. She is playing Alice Beineke, and this will be her last show with the Brunswick High School Players as she will be graduating this spring. It's sure to be a fun and hilarious show!

I Did It Again

A while ago the gas cap cord on my car disintegrated, and the cap was now detached. I decided to make it a habit to place the cap on the car roof when I filled the tank. Once I forgot to replace it and returned to Irving with hope! No cap had been found, nor did I find it on my search at the pump area. I purchased a new one at

With the prediction of snow, I like the weight of a full gas tank just in case. I had my usual happy Monday morning activities at People Plus and was off to fill my gas tank at the very busy station. I drove around twice before a pump became available. I was also distracted, forgetting to unlock the gas filler door from inside the car. It was windy and the thought that the cap might blow off the roof occurred to me; however, habit won out.

Task completed, receipt received, and on my way, I heard a noise from the roof and realized I had not replaced the cap. I turned around in the credit union parking lot to retrace my departure route with hope once again. The person at the pump I used said he was leaving so I could search – no cap. The gentleman on the opposite-side pump stepped up with kindness, offering to help me. He saw the cap on the road, told me he would go get it. As I watched, a truck was approaching the station and flattened the cap. This kind man was so apologetic saying, "Why did I not stop that truck?" He tried to repair the pancake-shaped cap and recommended I go across the street to VIP. He was sure they would have a new one. He gave me a hug and said he was so sorry. What a thoughtful act of kindness.

I felt confident I could replace this cap again at VIP as I had done before. Surprise, surprise – 2006 caps are no longer in stock and need to be ordered. Another act of kindness. This VIP serviceman said, "Let me see if it is available at NAPA just down the street. A bit of computer networking informed him they had this cap in stock. I was on my way once again with gratitude. No customers at NAPA and this serviceman welcomed me, understood my issue, checked inventory, and said he had two – one with an attached cord and one without. Both were retrieved and out we went to the car for a fitting check and decision. I now have a cap attached to the gas tank. Oh yes, he asked if I was a AAA member for a discount, so the good news was it cost less than VIP's that lacked the attachment cord and had an order wait!

I am so grateful to live in Maine with caring and thoughtful people. Kind deeds change lives.

Hope Peace Love

Hope is when you see the way. Peace is when your mind rests. Love is when you see what is real. Hope is when fear shrinks. Peace is when you are quiet and still. Love is when joy conquers fear. Hope is when you feel love. Peace is when you find hope. Love is when you feel peace and hope.

Lions

Did you know that lions can eat 100 lb.-1,000 lb. animals including alligators, rats, snakes, and even a human, and even if a lion is injured or has tooth decay? And did you know they can go two weeks without any food?

Females weigh 280 pounds and males 420 on an average. They cannot be kept as pets. They are predators and will kill. The average life span for a female is 15-16 years, and a male is 8-10. If a lion is in captivity, it will live on an average up to 20 years. The oldest male alive is 19 and rules a large pride of females.

Lion populations have dropped 43% in the past 20 years. To prevent lions from becoming extinct, we are finding where lions live and are staying away. In 2024, there was an estimated 23,000-39,000 lions left in the world. There are no black lions. White lions are very uncommon. There is a special organization that is working on saving the white Lions live in Africa from the Sahara Desert's southern edge to northern South Africa. There are a few lions that live in India's Gir Forest. You can get in there for $46, but it may cost you a lot flying to India.

One interesting fact I found out from the internet is how fast a lion can kill a human. It takes a few seconds with a quick bite to the head or neck. As a nurse, I realize they do that by biting the carotid artery along the side of the neck. Be careful when visiting lions in

Who Am I Now

On cold winter days when I am housebound And in my middle 80s, I sit and think. My life is so different than I expected. Suddenly, my strength and ability to do anything unwinds

I'm dealing with heart failure, Breathing is an effort, Much less running, walking is shaky, Driving, shopping, or dancing is a memory,

I always knew God had a purpose and plan for my life, Is it over?

Did I do a good job? I pray I did. Is it over?

Was the plan now to sit and watch the birds at our feeder, Or call on the phone to talk with family and friends? I still have a voice to encourage and praise. God gave me a love of people.

Loving my neighbors is everything, I can still ask God to bless them. Maybe my best days Are not behind me.

That will be the perfect day.

Spring in Maine

You know spring has arrived in Maine when

The sun is shining brightly and your teeth are chattering; You have to wear a parka over your Bermuda shorts;

The sunscreen display is next to the ice melt in the store; Your early blooms have to poke through the ice;

You want to start digging your garden but are out of dynamite; You just got back from Florida and are ready to go again, but you have to wait until the roads have been cleared of snow.

Time Travel

Is an expression some people fear.

That comes regretfully twice a year.

By going from daylight to darkness

And then during the summertime,

Spring forward, fall back,

Some ask why we bother

When it's only 4 o'clock.

I really don't think it's right,

That at 9 o'clock in the evening,

I can't sleep because it's light.

Now whether you agree or not,

When the clock turns back one hour.

It will take a lot of willpower

To carry on as usual

O'Donnells, Ed Sullivan, and The Beatles, February 9, 1964

Do you remember where you were on February 9, 1964?

I do! Well, parts of it.

I turned 12 in September 1963. I was at that age in between childhood and lusting after boys. Whoops ... I meant to say at that age where you were still a child, but verging on teenageism. Is that a word? Teenageism! It should be a word. Let's put it this way – hormones are raging, or beginning to.

I was also at that stage where I wanted to wear makeup and choose my own "cool" clothes and listen to the latest in "cool" music.

Only, my dad beat me to it – the listening to cool music part. As for clothes ... my dad always looked festive in his red plaid Christmas vest. And he picked out the most beautiful dress for my mom one year. Not sure where the cool dressing gene landed, but not with me. But I digress.

Picture this. My family is at our favorite restaurant – O'Donnells – a rare treat. It is Sunday. Ed Sullivan is on every Sunday, but wasn't a big deal in our family ... until – yup, February 9, 1964.

Dad rushed us through our meal, since he needed to be in front of the TV, when Ed Sullivan came on. Hmmmm ... what was up with that? The Beatles, of course. Not that I had ever heard of them.

Well! I can tell you ... after that evening on Ed Sullivan, I gathered my saved allowance and trotted right down to Wisconsin Ave. in Bethesda, Maryland, and bought my first 45, "I Want to Hold Your Hand." The flip side was "I Saw Her Standing There." And then there was "She Loves You." I can't help singing "Yeah, Yeah, Yeah...."

According to British TV publication
TellySpotting, and I quote, "More than 73 million Americans (almost 50% of television households) gathered around their televisions to watch four young men from Liverpool make history. Beatlemania was officially a thing from that day forward."

That day will be engrained in my psyche forever

And as another aside, one of my dear high school classmates, Bill, who I still stay in touch with, now owns O'Donnells restaurant, inherited from his parents and his grandparents when they first opened the restaurant in 1922 in Washington. D.C., down by the waterfront. Known for their seafood, and especially their turtle soup (which is delicious, especially with a dash or four of sherry delivered to the table in a small pitcher.) The next restaurant to open in 1956 was the one we went to and was operated by Bill's mom. Now the family owns seven restaurants in the Maryland/D.C. area that Bill's daughter oversees.

So, between The Beatles and the O'Donnells, I have tons of "verging on teenage" memories.

The Forests

The forests are keepers and revealers of all things quiet — secrets, shafts of light, dank moss, deeply embedded root structures supporting canopies of shelter and so many arms for hugging. Can the forests see and hear? Yes. It senses our movements and sounds. The forest breathes — intake of carbon and outflow of oxygen. Some trees have leaves, while others have needles fingers to explore, to touch and be touched.

Breathe deeply, dear forest friends; smell the earth's essence.
The forest has a voice; it sighs and moans in the wind, tree trunks sway back and forth, teasing the light. Listen to the language of the forest.

LOVE IS IN THE AIR AT PEOPLE PLUS! Linda Allen and Ned Robbins of Topsham met at People Plus 17 months ago and have now met at the altar. The couple got married in February and will travel to the Grand Canyon for their honeymoon. How did one thing lead to another? They started to go to the lunches at the Center once a month and then to the monthly Lunch Out. They started to sit together and talk ... more and more. Taking turns in tandem, they say, "We have so much in common. We blend. We like the same music and food. We like each other!" Linda says People Plus turned her life around. "He did, too," she says, pointing to Ned. Congratulations to the happy couple from all of us at People Plus!

New teen council, shamrock shakes and getting ready to scoop

Welcome to the Teen Center!

Welcome to Lauren Swimm, our new Teen Center intern! A social and behavioral sciences major at the University of Southern Maine, she is engaging with the students, whether it's doing arts and crafts, serving food or playing video games. Originally from Houlton, she hopes to pursue certification in behavioral health and continue to work in Maine after she graduates this year.

IT'S COOKIE TIME! The teens line up to decorate cookies with volunteer Marge Himmer!

It's finally March! Winter is on the way out, days are getting longer and our little window garden is already sprouting a few baby beans. We've been working with the kids to create this year's springtime wish list, and overwhelmingly they're looking for more stuff to do outside! The ideas range from the realistic, like a small garden and a disc golf basket to the slightly more farfetched permanent bounce house and archery range. We're open to a pretty wide range of ideas, but we may have to pass a few of these by the school to get their opinion.

While we keep collecting ideas we'll soon be passing some of these decisions on to our newly elected Teen Center Council! The last two weeks of the month will be spent casting votes for a new council of teens to help us guide the growth of the program. It's already been an intense election as multiple tickets have formed and dissolved. Sometimes in the same afternoon! I'm sure I'll have more details on to join for the day, and we'll have a full platforms as we get closer to the election, but currently they only seem interested in having the presidential title. In the meantime we've got plenty of March-themed activities to keep the kids occupied this month. We'll certainly be doing another round of Irish cooking, but we'll wait to see if any of the kids are brave enough to try some blood sausage. We'll also be making my personal favorite: Shamrock Shakes! We haven't decided yet, but we may make that one a weekly activity. Apparently, a few of our kids have made them before so we might even have to turn it into a competition to see who makes the best one!

Behind the scenes we're also well into Gelato Scoop-a-Thon season! Staff and volunteers are hard at work planning for our annual fundraiser. We'll be starting at 11am on April 30 at The Gelato Fiasco and we'll be there for a full 12 hours! We have a slew of community members eager schedule of entertainment, activities, and celebrity scoopers. A huge thank you to The Gelato Fiasco and all of our volunteers, performers, and sponsors who help make this event happen! Keep an eye out for more details and make sure to reserve plenty of time that day to stop by for a coffee and some ice cream. We're probably gonna need to break a few records to help make up for our rapid growth this we hope you have a great March filled with plenty of good luck!

CELEBRATE ST. PATRICK'S DAY

with Health, Wellness, and Giving Back!

This St. Patrick's Day, let's embrace the spirit of health, wellness, and community! Instead of just focusing on the usual celebrations, we encourage you to make this holiday a time for movement, mindful eating, and meaningful connections. Join us in participating in outdoor activities like fun runs, nature walks, or even a lively Irish dance session to get your heart pumping. Fuel your body with naturally green superfoods—think spinach, avocado, and matcha—to keep your energy levels high. And while celebrating, take a moment to practice gratitude, mindfulness, and social connection, fostering overall well-being.

As part of our commitment to wellness, we're looking for volunteers to teach and participate in health and wellness programs in our community. Let's honor the giving spirit of St. Patrick by helping others on their journey to better health. If you're interested in volunteering, sign up today and let's make this St. Patrick's Day about more than just luck—let's make it about wellness and kindness!

Tai Chi for Health and Balance – Messalonskee Middle School, Oakland, ME Tuesdays and Fridays, March 4 to May 2 | 6 to 7 p.m.

Tai Chi is an enjoyable exercise that can improve balance, relieve pain, and enhance overall health and daily functioning. It is easy to learn, suitable for all ability levels, and can accomodate people with mobility challenges by offering modifications to suit individual needs. The essential principles of Tai Chi include mind and body integration, fluid, gentle movements, controlled breathing and mental concentration. Recognized as one of the most effective exercises for both physical and mental well-being, Tai Chi helps individuals relax, reduce stress, and feel better. The workshop is designed to be inclusive and can be tailored to support participants with mobility limitations.

This evidence-based self-management program is designed to help participants understand and manage Type 2 diabetes. You do not need to have diabetes to participate. Anyone with diabetes, borderline diabetes, at risk of developing diabetes, or interested in learning more about healthy eating and meal planning is encouraged to attend. Participants can expect to learn practical skills and strategies to understand and monitor blood sugar levels, make informed food choices and plan balanced meals, incorporate physical activity into daily life, manage stress and cope with emotional challenges related to diabetes, prevent or delay complications associated with diabetes, and communicate effectively with healthcare providers. The workshop provides a supportive environment where participants can set goals, share experiences, and gain confidence in managing their health.

Building Better Caregivers – Virtual, join from anywhere! Wednesdays weekly, April 2 to May 7 | 5 to 7:30 p.m.

This program covers a variety of topics, including self-care strategies to improve caregiver's health, coping with difficult emotions, managing challenging care partner behaviors, planning for the future and finding helpful resources, enhancing communication with family, friends, and health care professionals, facilitating effective family meetings, navigating healthcare systems, and developing action plans, problem-solving, and decision-making skills. Participants will gain practical tools and strategies to improve their well-being and strengthen their caregiving abilities.

It's not a stretch to get fit if we do it together

Over the last months I've been faced with my ear buds. recovering from knee surgery, and my No matte physical therapist told me I needed to both stretch and strengthen my knee. Actually, I'm pretty sure she wants me to do that with all the other parts, too.

As a result, I've started to attend a chair yoga class at People Plus, which offers a lot of stretching. It feels good to do, and everything in my body seems to fit together more smoothly after class. It must be how my car feels after getting a tune-up. The class instructor is upbeat and supportive, the class members are engaged, and the music is comforting. The time flies by.

My therapist also told me that biking would be good exercise for my knee, so I went to the Brunswick Recreation Center and started to use the recumbent bike. When I'm on the bike, I see the folks on the track that rims the cardio area. In other words, I see other people working to stay fit, and I get inspired. It's motivation by community, the same feeling I get in People Plus classes.

On the track I see all ages, shapes, and sizes. Some walk fast, some walk slow. Some are thin, some are bulky. Some limp or use canes, others use walkers. Some are alone, some are in pairs. Some are in shorts, others in winter jackets. (All in all, it's a great place to people watch, right up there with airports! One day I had to smile as a girl about 4 years old tried to keep up with her grandfather.)

I don't burn extra calories by watching humanity stream by, but it does make the time go faster and keeps me entertained, along with hearing some favorite tunes pumping through or walking on the track. They are said to help

No matter where I am exercising, I especially like seeing older people stretching and moving well. One day while on the bike, I got transfixed by a gray-haired woman stretching on the large mat in front of me. She had to be at least 60 years old. In my mind, I called her the pretzel lady because she could stretch any which way, seemingly with ease. I'd never seen anyone that age looking that toned and strong. When she did the sideways, vertical plank with all her weight on one arm and leg while lifting her upper leg, I said to myself, "Really? A body her age can do that?" She continued her stretch moves for at least 20 minutes. All the while, I spent those minutes on the nearby bike pedaling slowly at the lowest possible resistance level. Let me tell you, petty as it may sound, I kept scanning her musculature to see if there could be one remaining ounce of underarm flab. A new thing I have found out about is weighted vests. I noticed several people wearing them while on the elliptical machine movements, and potentially improve bone density. (However, the vests should not be used without consulting a health professional or physical therapist and only introduced gradually into a workout.) Speaking of weights, I haven't mentioned the weight room, which is in a separate area at the Rec Center – one that I stay away from! But rehabbing my weakened knee and hip has taught me the importance of strengthening. I've always focused on aerobic exercise or stretching with yoga poses, but I now know that, especially for older adults, strengthening is key to maintaining muscle mass, improving mobility, reducing the risk of falls, boosting bone density, and managing chronic conditions like arthritis and diabetes.

Okay, okay, I should sign up for the Growing Stronger class at People Plus and also get a tour of the weight room! (By the way, for anyone feeling intimidated by fitness machines, the Rec Center offers "Machines 101" several times each month.)

news@peopleplusmaine.org

Overall in this rehabilitation journey, I realize that having other people exercising near me is an incentive. It helps me 'catch the vibe.' When I see the same person circling the track over and over, I tell myself, "I could pedal a while longer." Though I've never joined a regular gym, I suspect the stakes would feel higher, that I'd feel more alone, and that I'd feel more intimidated by a younger crowd wearing more spandex.

Whether at People Plus or the Rec Center, I feel like I'm one of many people trying to make my health better each day no matter our age or size. We all inspire each other, and even if I don't always meet my goal, I'm part of a community of people trying. And I feel lucky to have the best of both worlds, the support and encouragement of a class instructor and friendly reinforcement from my fellow students at People Plus, along with the cardio machines and track at the Rec Center. Altogether, I've got total fitness options.

One day, I saw a fellow exerciser with a tee shirt that said, 'Be kind to your mind.' Of course, a great way to do that is be kind to your body. So count me in.

Weaver to display vibrant pieces perfect for wintertime lift

Mallory Waldman in the Café Gallery during March and April. The exhibit will showcase her placemats, runners, jackets, rugs, pillows and vests woven from spun and dyed cotton thread. "I'm thrilled about the show," she says with her trademark enthusiasm.

Mallory started weaving seriously 30 years ago after her two children were grown and she left her full-time job. She now spends up to four hours a day weaving. Her particular fascination is how colors play with each other. As she weighs her color choices, she often experiments by weaving a long strip of one color and then weaving small strips of other colors next to it to see how they go together. In essence, it's a kind of sketching process but with thread.

Weaving is time-consuming, requiring patience because each thread has to be carefully interlaced on the loom. In one of her pieces, there were 740 wire loops (called heddles) on the loom that each needed to be threaded by Mallory Waldman at home in Harpswell weaving on one of her four looms.

Be sure to hand. And that didn't check out the col- count the additional orful weaving of time to push the yarn into place once it is threaded. It can sometimes take 12-24 hours to prepare the 'warp', the vertical threading mechanism that the horizontal 'weft' threads ultimately weave in combination with. (In are the two basic com- and shades of red. ponents to transform the thread into fabric; the weft threads are passed friends and family or trades with a quilter in over and under the lengthwise warp threads to create the fabric structure.)

She admits the preparation process can often be aggravating, sometimes trying her patience. "I've developed quite a vocabulary of curse words," she laughs. "But it's a joy when you're finally ready to begin."

Meanwhile, she saves all her color experiments so she can be reminded of what works and what doesn't. And she cherishes her colorful tower of spools that store the thread. forming a burst of color in her workspace. She also has a passion for books with old Colonial patterns she uses for table runners. She treats them almost like diaries where she can take notes about what she's making. "I use the old patterns, but I choose the new colors," she says.

Mallory grew up in Ohio, but her parents had a place on Vinalhaven because they liked to sail. "I fell in love with Maine," she says. In 2006, she and her husband, George, finally managed to settle here, first moving to Bath before landing in Harpswell. She worked the front desk at the YMCA in Bath for eight years, which was a "great entry into town."

Four years ago, Mallory started coming to People Plus and says she has met wonderful friends here. She takes yoga and 'Loosen Up' classes every week and says her husband comes for the foreign affairs club and is interested in joining the bridge group.

Mallory sells her work at an arts and craft weaving, warp and weft Many of the rug designs feature turquoise shop in Rockland called Archipelago. For anything sold at the show here at the Café Gallery, she will donate 40% to People Plus. Only the rugs in the People Plus show are for sale because the price of table runners, placemats, and other pieces would be too expensive because of the time involved in creating them. She gives away her labor-intensive pieces to her yoga class.

As part of the exhibit, she hopes to bring in a table loom and demonstrate the warp-and-weft process of weaving, an art form that continues to bring her such joy. That sounds like something you don't want to miss.
